National President's Notes

DTL NATIONALS - WAGGA WAGGA

The DTL Nationals are now rapidly approaching, being shot over April 1st to April 6th at the National Shooting ground in Wagga. The Pre-Nationals events will be conducted from March 29th to 31st.

Several improvements have been undertaken to continue our development of the grounds. Come along and see how things are improving and have an enjoyable weeks shooting at the same time. We are hoping for a good attendance.

WORLD CUP - PERTH

This month's will see the Western Australian Gun Club and WACTA hosting the first World Cup for 2003. I know that a lot of work has gone into making this event very successful. The events will be conducted from March 6th - 15th. We wish all Australian team members competing at this event every success. We need to win some Olympic quota spots to enable us to be well represented at the 2004 Olympic Games in Greece.

ISSF NATIONALS

At the time of writing the ISSF National titles are underway in Perth. The facilities, organisation and shooting have all been of a high standard.

The ISSF skeet events have been won by Paul Rahman, David Cunningham and George Barton with David winning the O/A High Gun. All 3 ladies events were won by Lauren Ogilvy and the High Gun by Natalia Rahman.

In trap our world cup champion Adam Vella won all 3 events and the High Gun. The ladies by Dianne Reeves, Nessa Jenkins and Emma Signorotto with the High Gun going to Deserie Baynes. Andrew Miller won the High Gun award for Juniors and finished second O/A, which was a fantastic effort for a Junior. The Double Trap events were still to be shot.

The scores were very good across all sectors, mens and ladies. I congratulate all involved in the running of the carnival, you did a great job.

Dear Sir

I refer to Michael D Collins letter Jan 2003. In all the letters I have read in your magazine, this is the most "spot on" letter of the lot that I have read since being a member of the ACTA. John Howard's latest pathetic attempt to further disarm us should be the last straw for all of us who believe that we, as law-abiding sound minded citizens, have the right to bear arms. I think it's high time that all firearm organisations united under one banner like the American NRA, especially the SSAA who has the largest membership. They must develop into an organisation that represents EVERYONE and not just their own members, even if they are 130,000 strong which is just being laughed at by Governments.

It's alright for an organisation to call itself "law-abiding" but we are slowly "abiding" ourselves right off the map. Below is a quotation by the Reverend Martin Niemoller, who was arrested by the Gestapo in 1937.

"In Germany, they first came for the Communists, but I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Communist. Then they came for the Jews, but I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the Catholics, but I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Catholic. Then they came for me and there was no one left to speak up."

Dear Your Say,

For quite some time now, I have "skipped" the pages containing Cuzzo's Ramblings for one reason or other. However, there was an item in the February issue that leapt off the page – and demanded comment!

Whilst I could not agree more and applaud the versatility of the feats of Graham Boyd – there is one thing that he certainly has not achieved – and that is "shot in Macintosh teams in all four main disciplines". Whilst Graham has certainly achieved "team" status in all four disciplines – a feat in itself – remarkable, here is only ONE Macintosh trophy for ONE team – and that is the Trap Team.

The "teams" for Skeet, ISSF Skeet and Olympic Trap are NOT Macintosh teams.

Now, some may see this response as being a little picky – but I believe that the facts are the facts – just as the rules are the rules. Therefore, whilst I could not agree more with Ian S. Young (Your Say, Feb, 2003) better persons than he have tried and failed – when it comes to keeping Shoot Marshall A. Cousens to those said rules.

It is the age old story, whenever there is someone out there who is constantly "in the face" of the hierarchy – the easy thing to do is give that person a free hand.....

Oh, I can see it now, a stream of letters supporting "Adrian".....and the wonderful job he does. Guess what, there are many members with just as much experience who would gladly give their time – if they were asked.

Jenny Burt

Dear Sir

I would like to reply to some "keen observations" made by Mr Ian S Young, in his letter regarding rules at the Skeet Nationals held in Perth WA.

Perhaps the Shoot Marshall should have asked referees, Mr Ian S Young and others, if they had read and comprehended the skeet rules in the rule book.

As there were no protests during the Skeet Nationals, I can only assume his rubbery statements are based on misinformation or second hand comments.

There is no record of Mr Young having competed at the Skeet Nationals. I wonder why Mr Young, as a West Australian, did not support the Nationals when in his home state, but felt free to make comments that were ill informed.

COFFS HARBOUR CLAY TARGET CLUB

Dominello the Dominator

Sydney's George Dominello brilliant return to form was a shining light for the 90 plus competitors at Coffs Harbour's Two Day Open Carnival held on 4 & 5 January. The event which is one of the first on the new year shooting calendar, saw a 15% increase in competitors on 2002.

pionships, had consistency on his side, taking out the B Grade High Gun.

Bob Kelso flew the flag for Coffs Harbour with great scores to take C Grade High Gun .

Yamba's Lynne Thompson took out the Ladies High Gun.

Ben Bloxsome from Glen Innes took out the Ladies High Gun.

Tamworth's Peter Holmes battled all weekend to pick up the AA High Gun, with competitors the likes of Guyra's Geoff Lancaster, Cessnock's Paul & Tom Turner, always within striking range to make the High Gun theirs.

President Mr Bob Aitchison said "Coffs Harbour's Two Day Carnival has established itself as a premier event and a must attend shoot".

He praised club members for their efficient running of the carnival, but always maintaining a relaxed holiday atmosphere.

Dominello joined 56 shooters for practice on Friday afternoon, trying to arrest his form slide which saw him struggle to remain in A Grade over recent weeks, but by the end of competition on Saturday he had moved into AA Grade. By the end of the competition on Sunday, Dominello had the High Gun title wrapped up with a wonderful score of 247/250 and collected the accommodation package kindly donated by Rob & Elle Kelso of Aqualuna Resort on the beach at Sapphire.

Joe Camilleri left the strawberry farm for the weekend only deciding at 11am Friday that he would make the trip up north. He took out all five championship events and A Grade High Gun. Joe was last seen trying to hire a removal van to take all his prizes home.

Sydney's Fil Pignataro, although not winning any of the cham-

CUZZO'S RAMBLINGS

March 2003

Over the last few months I have covered various topics in this column including political issues, shoot reports and general interest items. However, at least a couple of times each year I like to delve into fundamental coaching matters and as I haven't addressed that area for a while, this month I intend to return to it. One of the most important and complicated areas that Shotgun Shooting Instructors encounter is the assessment and correction of hand/eye dominance problems

Shooting a moving target with a shotgun is much more capably done with both eyes open, rather than using the traditional rifle method of closing one eye and using only the eye that lines up with the firearm's barrel. The four main advantages that binocular vision has over monocular vision are:

- 1) A wider field of view
- 2) Better peripheral vision
- 3) Better depth perception
- 4) Decreased eyestrain and fatigue.

Very few people have balanced vision where both eyes are of equal strength and are used in conjunction, or in turn at random. (In much the same way very few people are truly ambidextrous). Most people have a dominant eye, which is known as the master eye. The master eye is the one that has the strongest vision, or focuses more quickly or more clearly. Many people are not even aware that they have a master eye until it is pointed out to them. This is easy to do. Simply ask them to:

- 1) Make a fist but extend their thumb upwards.
- 2) Hold their arm down and out in front of them.
- 3) Keep both eyes open.
- 4) Focus their vision on some small distant object (such as a light switch or doorknob).
- 5) Raise their thumb to cover the viewed object.

Now ask them to continue focusing on the distant object, but tell you how many other thumbs they can see with their peripheral vision. The answer should always be one more. Then ask them which side of the distant object the "second" thumb appears to be. Note the answer and then ask them to lower their arm, start over, and repeat the whole procedure. Do this two or three more times. The fact that the "ghost" thumb always appears to be on the same side of the viewed object, is proof that one particular eye, their master eye, continually takes over and lines up the objects.

The majority of people are right-handed (probably through training) and most right-handed people develop a dominant right eye. Nearly all right-handed people who first pick up a shotgun tend to shoot it off the right shoulder, due to their acquired tendency to control actions with their right hand. The same is usually true, in reverse, for most left-handed people. This is a very fortunate situation for those people who fall into this category, because it usually allows them to shoot off their "natural" shoulder with the advantages of two-eyed vision.

Most people's first exposure to firearms is usually with some sort of single projectile weapon, such as a slug gun or a 22-rimfire rifle, where one-eyed aiming is an acceptable practice. Thus, when they first pick up a shotgun their natural tendency will be to shoot it one-eyed. For shotguns this is counter-productive. Even though they may find it a little disconcerting, and be somewhat resistant to making the change, with a little perseverance, most people can make a relatively quick and easy transition from one eye to two eyes, provided that their dominant hand and eye are co-ordinated. After a very short time they will wonder how or why they ever tried to use one eye, and be very appreciative of your insistence for them to make the change.

Occasionally, when changing people over from one eye to two eyes, you will encounter a person who for some reason has a dominant eye opposite to the shoulder that they shoot off. The problems associated with, and the resistance to, the changes that are required to correct or improve this undesirable situation, are much more serious and complicated. Several options are available:

- 1) Change over and shoot off the other shoulder.
- 2) "Patch out" the master eye on their shooting glasses.
- 3) Call for the target with both eyes open but close the master eye prior to firing.
- 4) Squint the master eye while shooting.
- 5) Continue shooting one eyed.

Changing over and shooting off the opposite shoulder is by far the best alternative if it can be achieved. Resistance to this transition is usually high, and the time required to make it viable will usually be long and filled with frustration. It probably should not be attempted for those people who have been shooting off the "wrong" shoulder for a long time, and have become reasonably proficient at it, or for those people who are not competition shooters, and thus may never put in sufficient time and effort at it, to surpass their current ability from the other shoulder. As a generalization, social shooters should probably be steered toward some less traumatic alternative such as a lens patch, whereas serious competition shooters should probably always be advised to try and persist with changing shoulders for a reasonable period, even if they eventually decide to revert to some other method.

Putting a patch on the master-eye lens of their shooting glasses is definitely the next best, and only other truly viable option, if shoulder changing is not acceptable. Although it achieves little in depth perception, it makes some gains in widening your field of view and with peripheral vision and it certainly eliminates the eyestrain and fatigue involved with closing one eye. The smaller the patch the better, provided that it achieves its purpose of eliminating the master eye's view of the end of the barrel and of the target, when it is in or near the firing zone. Generally a round patch of about 5/8" diameter applied to the inside of the lens near the upper outside corner will suffice. Having a friend help you position the patch, while you have the gun mounted, is usually the quickest and easiest way to get it in the optimum spot.

Either method of closing one eye just as you shoot, or squinting during the whole shot, are unreliable "band-aid" type methods, and are not really recommendable. They are fraught with the dangers of incorrect timing and variable application, and it is debatable whether the gains and losses associated with using and/or misusing these methods, outweigh the stable and predictable disadvantages of one-eyed shooting. Both these methods date back prior to the inception of the patched lens, and both have certainly been eclipsed by this newer innovation. As a generalization, if you encounter someone who is using, and has perfected, either of these methods, then leave well alone. But definitely do not advocate either of them to anyone new. Stick with the patched lens.

If for any reason all of the above corrective methods are either unacceptable or unworkable, then do not despair at having to stay with one-eyed shooting. No one ever said that good shooting with one eye was impossible. It's just a little more difficult, that's all. You know that you are giving away a little advantage to those people who shoot with two eyes, in just the same way that you do if you shoot a 20-gauge gun in 12-gauge events. But you also know that plenty of 12-gauge events have been won by people shooting the 20-gauge.

As a matter of fact, the greatest lady Skeet shooter of all time, Lori Desatoff, always shot one-eyed and I had the pleasure of sitting in the Shoot-off Stadium on two separate occasions and watching her win World Skeet Championships outright. The first time she shot doubles from stations 3, 4 & 5 with her 410, one-eyed, against about 30 other guys shooting two-eyed, to win the World Champion of Champions. And on the other occasion, just to really emphasize the point, she won the World Doubles Championship shooting her 20-gauge one-eyed at night, against a whole bunch of guys shooting their 12-gauges with two eyes.

Anyway, returning to the core issue, the obvious answer to this whole hand-eye dominance situation is to try to catch new shooters at a very early stage, establish their eye dominance, and then start them shooting off the corresponding shoulder, with both eyes open, right from the start. I believe that hand dominance is simply a matter of habit or training, and provided that the person has not already done a lot of shooting off the "wrong" shoulder, then both shoulders should feel equally awkward to begin with, and make no difference where they start.

This point was memorably illustrated to me many years ago when I decided to learn to slalom water ski. My first question to my instructor was "which foot should I put to the front?" His answer was "which ever one feels best." I tried each foot several times and both ways felt equally awkward. By random choice I then persevered leading with the right foot until I learned to do it that way. In hindsight, this is actually back to front for a right-handed person. However, I now ski passably well with this method and any attempts to lead with my left foot feel uncomfortable and unnatural. And like many right-handed people, I "bat" left-handed for probably the same reason: lack of right-hand biased instruction.

The best way for an instructor to test and ascertain eye dominance is a variation of the "do it yourself" thumb method described at the beginning of this section. Rather than have the students cover distant objects with their thumbs, cover your own left eye with your hand and have them use your right eye as their thumb's target. This way you can see immediately which eye they are using for alignment.

Another time-honoured method is to tear a top flap off a target box and make a hole in the centre of it about the size of a ten-cent coin. Have the person being tested hold the cardboard down and out in front of them at arm's length. Position yourself in front of them at a distance of about ten feet and hold your watch up in front of your face. Ask them to concentrate their vision on the watch and then raise the cardboard up until they can see it through the hole. Have them repeat this several times to be sure. They will almost always continually bring the hole up to the same eye, their master eye. By holding the watch up in front of your face, you will be able to see which eye it is.

Quote of the month: I will be 55 later this year and was recently grumbling around the Gun Club about the side effects of growing old. This was overheard by that evergreen Gippsland Trap shooter, "Swervin" Mervyn McKnight who offered what I reckon qualifies for the quote of the month: Never resent growing old, as it is a privilege denied to many". Thanks Merv, you've given me a whole new insight on that situation.

This month's Shooting Trivia Question: Who is the only person to ever be credited with 50x50 in the qualifying rounds of a National Skeet Championship after firing only 49 shots? Mail your answer to Shooting Trivia, P.O. Box 265, Bairnsdale 3875, to arrive by 20-03-2003. The first correct answer drawn shall receive a free entry to this year's National Skeet Championship. The correct answer to January's STQ is: Only five names are engraved on the Parker and Holland Cup for qualifying zero points down for the Macintosh Team. They are Dennis Byrne (1972), Ken Lowry & Vin Ryan (1974), Fraser Roberts (1989) and Robbie Nisbet (1995). The first correct answer drawn was submitted by Ryan Atkins from Tongala in Victoria who wins a free entry to this year's National Trap Handicap.

'The Ultimate Competition Shotgun'

S682E

After years helping countless competitive Trap and Skeet shooters to the victory stand, the Beretta S682E have been revamped and re-designed to make them the most sought after competition over-and-unders available. The new S682E's strong, low profile receiver has an exclusive dual colour finish. Together with the modern ellipsis graphic motif, the contrast between the glossy, matte and gold parts ensures an extraordinary beauty. Beretta's electroless nickel finish provides added protection against the elements. Features: Optima-Bore® barrel profile that reduces felt recoil and improves shot distribution (select models only). Optima-Choke® tubes (also available external version), ensure consistent shot distribution year after year. Top & side ribs are ventilated and the barrels are chrome lined internally and have a deep blue finish. Triggers are adjustable for length pull fit to three positions. All models available with adjustable stock. Supplied complete with ABS hard case, featuring the exclusive double handle.

S682E Custom Gun Fitting is now available at Beretta Australia by our very qualified and experienced stockmaker and gunsmith. For more information, contact your local firearms Beretta dealer or Beretta Australia Pty Ltd.
