ACTA Skeet National Championship

Held in near perfect conditions at the National Ground, Nov 11 - 16. Big breaks and long shoot off's saw scores such as Laurie Scerisini 305/305 in the all States Skeet Championship to edge out Pedro Da Silva on 304/305.

Kym Retsas, SA Gun Club, took home both the Handicap, 218/218 and the 34th National Skeet Championship 116/116.

Adrian and Julian Luchitti, NSW Gun Club, both performed well with Julian Overall High Gun 361/364. Congratulations go to all competitors.

Wagga Wagga Council

Andy Sanders and myself received an official invitation to attend the Wagga Wagga Council Meeting 8 December.

We were asked to review the previous 5 years development and present our vision for the future.

A very positive outcome, with an agreement that a mutually beneficial package could be developed.

Registration Figures

Year-end registration figures reveal a modest increase for 2003 over 2002. This increase is significant being the first year an increase has been achieved for a good number of years.

Junior Team

Matthew Hawker, Fraser Cocking, Rowan Lendon

The team arrived in Auckland on 19th November and drove down to Hamilton by bus that evening. Gaye was already in Hamilton as she had been part of the ISSF team. Our accommodation was at the Alcamo Hotel, which was extremely comfortable and close to Restaurants.

The next morning all attended the practise session at the Waikato Gun Club, which started at 9.30am. After 2 free practice sessions and allowed extras the team returned to Hamilton to a free afternoon. The Technical meeting was at 3.00pm that afternoon which I attended.

The first day of competition was shot in rounds of 25. There were two waves (7 squads of 5) shot Pointscore, five per lane as per New Zealand rules. The Club had arranged for referees and scorers as well as fillers for an even competition for all. A 15-minute break was had between rounds. New Zealand had A & B teams in all categories.

After the first day of competition scores were close between all teams. The women had the biggest break on the other Women's teams, but few points separated the others. All our shooters had shot extremely well. The weather hadn't been kind, as it had been cool and windy with fluctuating light.

After completion of the competition on the second day, once again all scores were very close. This was a very exciting competition with the last round being important to all.

Scrubby Creek

What another great 2-day shoot with a record number of shooters, (124) coming from Vic, N.S.W and QLD. The weather was fine, very dry, good weather to keep the drought going. Shooters came from Bendigo and Boort, Vic, Warren, Goolma and Lightning Ridge in N.S.W, from Normanton, Mt. Isa in the North to QLD boarder and East to the coast.

Thanks to Wingo and Don for their dedicated time given to us. Rick, for helping with the traps and annoying the secretary. Thanks to Sir Bill for keeping everything running smoothly with no complaints and our Tree Hugger for his directions. Last but not least, thanks to the ladies and all members for their help, to our Sponsors, we couldn't do it without your support. Wasn't it great to see the biggest grade was C grade with 55 shooters. Doesn't that say something, we are trying to encourage them not drive them away on 15m.

Event 1. - Cash divide Event 2. - D/B was won in great style by G.Darlington from B.Powell. Event 3. -PTS won by Victoria, Burgler L.Knight. Event 4. - D/D won by the old Fox, Rex and his new partner, young Fox, Doug from Lightning Ridge. 2nd Father and Son Birgan from Brisbane. Event 5. - S/B won by Nockie from Rockhampton in a shoot off. No gentleman, as he beat a lady, Holy Wilson. Event 6. - H/cp 4 possible, won in fine style after a long shoot off by young Fox again Doug Lehman. Great coaching Uncle Rex. 2nd S.Kinsey P R.Ross

The last event won by the old fox Rex Lehman, well shot. Do we all need a younger bride? High Gun won again by L.Knight from Bendigo Vic. Two years in a row. Can he do it again and make it 3 years? Great shooting for the weekend encouragement award M.Baker, keep trying Megan.

Once again, a big thank you to all the travelling shooters and sponsors.

See you all in 2004, if we are not washed away.

The Oceania Games is possibly the most important event on the shooting calendar during the four-year Olympic cycle. It is the last opportunity for Australia to win quota spots for the Athens Olympic Games. For a country to send shooters to the Olympics it must win quotas. Quotas can be won at world cups and world championships, which are open to any country to compete at, or continental championships, which is restricted to countries from that region. We had won four quotas prior to the Oceanias two in men's trap (Michael Diamond and Adam Vella), men's double trap (Russell Mark) and women's double trap (Susie Trindall). A shooter may only win one quota in any discipline, therefore our teams were made up of shooters eligible to win quotas, except in men's trap and women's double trap where we were fully quotered. This was also the last opportunity for several shooters to try to gain their MQS (minimum qualifying score) which must be achieved at an international world event before a shooter can compete at the Olympics.

The tournament was held at the Waikato Gun Club in Hamilton one and half-hours from Auckland. The club is made up of ten DTL grounds, five skeet, one double trap and one trap range, all situated 10 minutes from downtown Hamilton.

MQS* denotes shooters achieving MQS for the first time in this Olympic cycle.

Men's Double Trap

1. S Haberman AUS 132 + 46 = 178 (43, 45, 44)
  2. P. Goodwin NZ 134 + 40 = 174 + 7

  4. S. Wilson NZ 131 + 42 = 173
  5. C. Tilley AUS 121 + 41 = 162 + 7 (42, 35, 44)
  6. J. Beddis NZ 123 + 39 = 162 + 6

T. Ballantine AUS 115 (35, 39, 41)

Teams: NZ 388, AUS 381

A great final from Steve Haberman to come from behind to win the quota for Australia. Steve Baynes also shot a 46 in the final to grab the bronze, while Craig Trembath achieved his MQS.

Women's Double Trap: 2nd - Nadine Stanton (NZ), 1st - Gaye Shale (Aus), 3rd - Teresa Borrell (NZ)

6. Z. McClure NZ 81 + 22 = 103

Teams: NZ 263, AUS 251

A terrific effort by Gaye who went into the final 4 targets behind and shot a 35 to clinch the gold. After two ordinary opening rounds she also needed a 32 in her third qualifying round to gain her MQS. She did this in style by posting a 36 in her third round.

Women's Skeet

1. N. Rahman AUS 66 + 24 = 90 (23, 20, 23)
2. L. Ogilvie AUS 67 + 22 = 89 (22, 23, 22)

Women's Skeet: 2nd – Lauryn Ogilvie (Aus),

6. M. Whyte NZ 53 + 19 = 72
- Z. Dittori AUS 61 (20, 20, 21) MQS*

Teams: Aus 199, NZ 175

A 24 in the final saw Natalia take the gold and also secure the quota for Australia. Zitta shot steadily to achieve her MQS as did Natasha who has not shot much ISSF skeet for the past two years.

1. S. Balogh AUS 64 + 23 = 87 (21,21, 22)

5. D. Baynes AUS 59 + 20 = 79 (21, 19, 20)
6. V. Prout NZ 50 + 16 = 66
- S. Roiall AUS 64 (24, 21, 19) MQS*

Teams: AUS 187, NZ 173

Suzy shot steadily through the whole event to win the quota and the gold medal while Stacey showed she is very capable and shot her MQS with ease.

Men's Trap

1. G. Patton NZ 118 + 25 = 143 + 4
2. R. Mark AUS 121 + 22 = 143 + 3 (23, 25, 25, 24, 24,)
3. V. Shaw NZ 120 + 23 = 143 + 1

6. J. Tonna AUS 107 + 21 = 128 (21, 21, 21, 22, 22,)
- C. Henwood AUS 115 (23, 21, 23, 23, 25) MQS*

Teams: NZ (B) 343, AUS 342, NZ (A) 340

As Australia was fully quotered (2) in men's trap New Zealand took both Olympic quotas. Russell shot well in qualifying and it took a great 25 from Gavin Patton to peg back the lead and finish with the gold. Both Craig Trembath and Craig Henwood shot their MQS.

6. G. Jukes NZ 109 + 23 = 132

- L. Scribani Rossi AUS 117 (24, 23, 23, 21, 24) MQS*

Team: AUS 359, NZ 336.

A fantastic qualifying from Paul with 124, to break the Junior world record and equal the Commonwealth record. He and David won both quotas for Australia while Goran and Luca both shot their MQS.

A great effort from the team. We won all the Olympic quotas available to us, which now means Australia will field the maximum

Men's Skeet: 2nd – David Cunningham (Aus), 1st – Paul Rahman (Aus), 3rd – Neil Rundle (Aus)

of nine shooters in clay target at the Athens Olympics.
Thanks must go to Darien and Glenniss for their assistance in

Does Your Shotgun Fit?

By Rick Hacker

I can't imagine anyone buying a shirt without first checking the size. And yet, many of us purchase a shotgun simply based upon its action type, gauge, and price. Sometimes we even have our dealer order a particular model after reading about it. Even if we handle it at a shop or gun show, how many of us simply throw the smoothbore to our shoulder as a natural reflex, without pausing to analyze where our gaze falls across the rib or whether we have to bob our head back and forth just to center the bead? As long as the gun is well made, looks good, and priced right, we are sold without considering how well its dimensions fit our physique.

And that is why so many of us miss birds.

To be fair, shotgun fit is not something most American hunters take seriously. In Britain, wingshooting is historically reserved for the upper classes who venture afield with 'best' guns measured specifically for them. Here, it's a sport of the people, available to all law-abiding citizens with a scattergun and a hunting license. This has given rise to some well-made and relatively affordable shotguns, but because they are mass-produced their stock dimensions are, by necessity, designed as a compromise for the 'average' shooter. Consequently, we have been taught simply to adapt and hunt with factory guns as they are.

The missed birds we normally blame on poor shooting technique might actually be the fault of a gun that fails to fit your physique

Trap and skeet competitors have long been aware of the importance of shotgun fit. But proper fit is just as crucial for success in the field. When a cackling pheasant bursts from the corn stubble or a covey of quail explodes from a thicket, we must instantly mount our shotgun, swing, and fire. There is no time to consciously force the gun to fit by hunkering down on the stock or straining to get the bead properly positioned. All too often we blame our misses on poor shooting rather than the fact that our shotgun isn't properly attuned to our physical stature.

Although I am an avid bird hunter with an affinity for side-by-sides, for many years I didn't think much about this subject. Either a gun shot well, or it didn't. I've had smoothbores, like my 1914-era 12-bore Wesley Richards, with which I seemingly couldn't miss. In fact, even though this classic British side-by is bored Improved Modified and Full, I often take it pheasant hunting, as it consistently drops both close and distant birds. On the other hand, I took my 12-gauge Beretta 682, which dates from the 1980s and is choked Modified and Full, on a goose hunt in Alberta and had a devil of a time bagging my limit even though the sky was practically covered with geese.

Most fitters use a "try gun" to achieve perfect fit for clients. Numerous adjustment points on the buttstock can tailor length of pull, drop, cast, and pitch for a specific shooter.

Shotgun Blueprint

Consequently, I had come to consider myself an adequate shotgunner who occasionally got lucky, sometimes limiting out, other times grateful if I came home with a brace of birds for the weekend. Then I met Bryan Bilinski, who not only changed my outlook on shotgunning, but changed my 'luck' afield.

Five Key Dimensions

Bryan is managing director of Fieldsport, a wingshooting school and importer for Aya, Ithaca Classic Doubles, and Kemen. He is also one of the country's leading shotgun fitters. Our meeting was prompted when I maxed out my credit card by ordering an NID Ithaca 7E from Steve Lamboy, president of Ithaca Classic Doubles. These hand-built side-by-sides are reissues of the famous New Ithaca Double shotguns that were so popular—and are now so collectible—from 1926 through 1948. Rather than purchasing a gun already in stock, this one was to be highly personalized, featuring special engraving, double triggers with specific pulls of 3 and 3½ pounds for right and left barrels, respectively, and chokes of Improved Cylinder and Improved Modified.

'With such definite ideas about what you want,' Bryan said over the phone, 'Steve felt the gun should be tailored to your exact measurements.'

I had to agree. It would be downright embarrassing if I got my customized Ithaca and couldn't hit anything with it. Besides, I also rationalized it would be a cost-effective move, for with a properly fitted shotgun, I would be using fewer shells per bird and over a period of time, could theoretically recover the price of my gun. At least, that's what I told my wife. I also realized that the benefits of proper fit could be applied to any shotgun, whether it was a Remington 870 or a Winchester 21.

Shotgun fit breaks down into five basic categories: 1) length of pull—the distance from the trigger to the rear of the stock; 2) drop at comb—the distance from an imaginary line extending straight back from the rib and over the comb down to the top of the comb; 3) drop at heel—the measurement of this same imaginary line extended even farther down to the heel of the stock; 4) pitch—which is the way the stock 'twists' in relationship to the receiver and affects how securely it will fit into your shoulder; and 5) cast—which is the slight bend of the buttstock as it angles either to the left or the right of an imaginary line running down the length of the rib. 'Cast off' describes a stock that angles to the right, away from the shooter's face, and is typically the measurement used for right-handers. 'Cast on' refers to a stock that bends to left of the receiver, and thus, away from the left cheek of southpaw shooters.

For hunters, a shotgun lacking the correct drop causes you to shoot too high or too low. Improper cast results in patterns tossed to the left or right of the quarry. Either discrepancy means lost birds.

Most gun fitters use a 'try gun' to achieve a perfect fit for their clients. A try gun is a shotgun with a buttstock possessing numerous knuckle adjustments that can alter the length of pull, drop, cast, and pitch. Normally these measurements are made in a gun store by someone skilled in this practice. In a way, it is like being measured for a suit of clothes by a tailor; the more skilled the tailor, the better the suit will fit. By mounting the shotgun again and again, and checking your stance and sighting back down the barrels from the muzzle end of the unloaded gun, the fitter is able to adjust the stock to your exact measurements.

Surprisingly, there are no 'try gun fitting schools.' Every fitter learns as an apprentice from someone else, and then perfects his techniques by constant practice. Bilinski began learning his craft back in the 1980s under some of the best fitters at the Orvis Shooting School. But Bilinski, who was instrumental in helping establish sporting clays in this country, is also a shooting coach, and quickly realized that proper stance is equally important as proper gun fit.

'It's impossible to do a good gun fitting if you can't also coach and teach proper shooting,' he says. 'I can't let you stand incorrectly and expect good things to happen with an improper gun mount, no matter how well the shotgun fits.'

Thus, Bryan differs from most gun fitters by having you shoot his try gun once all the measurements are made. In this way, he is able to fine-tune the stock dimensions based upon the shooting ability of customers. In the process, he invariably improves their shooting. Obviously, this hands-on approach goes beyond the traditional fitting procedure and involves a second session at the range. Most of Bryan's customers visit his Traverse City, Michigan, location in conjunction with purchasing a custom shotgun or schedule a fitting before going on one of his fall bird hunts.

Shooting In The Fit

Luckily Bryan and I were able to get together at the Beinfeld International Sporting Arms Show, held every winter in Las Vegas to showcase some of world's finest rifles and shotguns. Meeting at his

When fitting your gun, keep in mind its intended use, as cold-weather clothing like a bulky waterfowl parka can significantly increase length of pull, which can alter shooting.

Fieldsport booth, we took the first step, using his try gun, a side-by-side 12-bore made by the Midland Gun Company, in Birmingham, England, and fitted with Briley chokes. Interestingly, no company makes a try gun, per se; they must be custom ordered, just like factory cut-away salesmen's models of various firearms that were so popular in the last century. Speaking of which, at this same gun show I saw a Winchester Model 21 try gun priced at $16,500!

My session, which took approximately 15 minutes, involved a number of adjustments, with Bryan making alterations to the gun every time I threw it up to my shoulder and looked down the rib.

While being measured, I learned that an average length of pull for a straight-gripped shotgun with double triggers was 14½ inches, that the typical drop at comb was 1½ inches, and 2½ inches is average for drop at heel. However, many factory guns do not allow for any cast off or cast on of the stock, opting for a middle-of-the-road compromise that, unfortunately, benefits neither right- nor left-handed shooters. By comparison with these typical stock dimensions, my try-gun session resulted in a 14½-inch length of pull, a 1½-inch drop at comb, and a 2⅞-inch drop at the heel.

The next part of this measuring session was the most enjoyable, for it involved Bryan and I breaking away from the show and driving out to the Nellis Trap & Skeet Club at nearby Nellis Air Force Base. There, we quickly set up a steel plate at 16 yards from the firing line. The plate was sprayed with white paint and then marked with a bright orange dot in the center. As I shouldered the try gun for the first shot, Bryan looked at my feet and said, 'You're basically a rifle shooter, aren't you?'

Sure enough, both feet were pointing perpendicular to the target. I was reminded that wingshooting is not the same as riflery. I quickly corrected my stance, quartering towards the target, with my left foot pointing towards the orange dot (the perceived point of break) and my right foot on a 45-degree angle to my left. I was glad Bryan was there.

'You can't fit yourself for a shotgun stock any more than you can fit yourself for a suit,' he said. 'You need someone else to observe.'

I put the try gun to my shoulder. With the correct drop of the stock, I could see the bead resting on top of the rib. I placed it over the orange paint and fired. The pattern, which showed up admirably against the large white plane, was slightly to the left and low. I then fired four more times to make sure it was the gun and not me. At 16 yards, for every inch your point of impact is off, you must calibrate the stock ⅛th of an inch in the opposite direction. Bryan took the gun back to his portable bench and made some minor tweaks. We discovered I actually shot better with a slightly longer length of pull than had been established in his booth; my readjusted LOP was 14⅞ inches. The solid obliterations of the orange spot with my last five shots confirmed those measurements.

'Depending on a shooter's skill, we usually have to spend three to four hours at the range,' Bryan said. In between respraying the target and reapplying the orange spot, our entire session took slightly less than an hour. It was just as well, for by then the sun was starting to set and the bright muzzle blasts from the barrels were distinct in the fading twilight.

Final Adjustments

Back home, I measured my two shotguns. Whoever ordered my Wesley Richards in 1914 must have been 5 foot 10 inches tall and weighed 165 pounds just like me, because that stock fit my dimensions exactly. Which explains why

I was able to shoot it so well. By contrast, my Beretta had a 14 inch length of pull and not enough drop. Fortunately, length of pull is the easiest measurement to correct. It is also the most important, as it affects trigger pull and gun mounting. Pull length can be increased by installing a recoil pad of the desired thickness, such as those offered by Pachmayr, or a removable slip-on leather pad made by firms like Galco. Wearing bulky clothing will also affect LOP, so if your shotgun measures 14½ and you need 14¾ inches, don't make any alterations if you plan any cold-weather hunting; the bulkier clothes will make up the difference. To decrease LOP, simply shorten the stock or replace a thick recoil pad with a thinner one.

For the more complicated adjustments of drop and cast, hot oil stock bending may be the only solution. However, stock bending is an expensive process, and there is always the danger of cracking the wood, especially on older guns. But with many shot-guns, a good gunsmith can simply pull the stock and shave a predetermined amount of wood from one side or the other to change the angle of drop or cast. When the stock is refitted back onto the receiver, it will be correctly repositioned left or right, up or down. As for my Beretta, which needed major adjustments, I sent it to gunsmith Les Pittman, an expert in stock bending, to have a thicker recoil pad installed and to make adjustments in both cast off and drop.

Bryan informed me that a pistol grip stock requires a ⅛-inch shorter LOP than a straight grip stock. After our session, in which I was using a straight-gripped try gun, I called Steve at Ithaca Classic Doubles and shortened my custom shotgun's LOP accordingly, as my work order called for a pistol grip. Twenty-gauge guns require a ⅛-inch longer LOP than 12-gauges due to the shorter receivers on the smaller bores; the difference must be made up in the length of stock that it takes to reach your shoulder.

Once you know your correct measurements, simply take a tape measure with you to the gun shop or gun show and see how close a coveted scattergun comes to matching your physical requirements. I have since passed up buying an otherwise attractive and affordably priced Parker because it did not fit me. Of course, unless you are considering a custom gun, or happen to get lucky, as I did with my Wesley Richards, no shotgun is going to meet all of your qualifications. But while I am waiting for my custom NID Ithaca to be delivered, I am shooting a lot better with the Beretta since having its stock altered.

Which brings me to the only downside of owning a properly fitted shotgun: There is no longer any excuse for missing.

CHRISTMAS SHOOT AT ECHUCA

Seven full squads of shooters turned up at Echuca Clay Target Club on Sunday 14th to compete for the large array of hams, puddings, trophies, etc on offer.

Most shooters had their families with them to enjoy the very pleasant afternoon tea, and the excellent dinner supplied by the ladies committee at no charge.

The children enjoyed the day with a jumping castle to play in, and lollies and drinks on hand, and a visit by Santa Clause mid afternoon.

The weather turned out perfect for the shoot with calm conditions and 28 degrees of clear sky ensuring good scores all day. The serious event of the day was event one, a Champion of Champions with only winners of Championship events at the club throughout the year eligible to win the Overall Sash.

Bill Eagle, winner of Champion of Champions.

Four grades going down to 3rds and an overall, and four ten target events going down to sixth place, ensured there was plenty of winners for the full day's shoot. Proving his ability to put a good score together, local shooter W (Bill) Eagle with a 58/60 score accepted the Overall Sash in the Champion of Champions event.

All other results are as follows, AA grade 1st K Bruns, 2nd R Peatling, 3rd G Fletcher. A grade 1st P Kerr, 2nd M Roberts, 3rd T Plum. B grade 1st F Gobbo, 2nd P Sing, 3rd B Rogers. C grade 1st George Calleja, 2nd A Gobbo, 3rd S Boyd.

With the serious shooting over, it was time for the novelty events and some fun clay shooting.

Event Two, a ten target D/B off 20 meters. 1st S Atkins, 2nd B O'donnell, 3rd P Kerr, 4th C Fitzgerald, 5th K Bruns, 6th W Eagle.

Event Three, a ten target P/S off 18 meters. 1st G Norris, 2nd P Sing, 3rd A Gobbo, 4th Glen Calleja, 5th P Kerr, 6th P Gobbo.

Event Four, a ten target auto and driven, one DTL target one Skeet target on report. 1st C Fitzgerald, 2nd T Robinson, 3rd S Atkins, 4th T Plum, 5th M Roberts, 6th Brett O, Donnell.

Event Five, a ten target reverse points off 18 meters. 1st R Atkins, 2nd W Eagle, 3rd P Gobbo, 4th R Traill, 5th H O,Conner, and 6th Grant Sing.

Christmas Shoots usually give everyone a chance to mix together, and talk of past experiences, and this shoot was no exception with all shooters having a very good day out at the Echuca club. A big hand of applause to the Ladies Committee for an excellent catering job.

TECHNICAL SCHOOL ON TARGET

A mix of year 7, 8, 9 students, boys and girls arrived at the Echuca Clay Target Club On Tuesday the 16th of December to spend two hours of shotgun coaching on safety and use from Committee members of the club.

The Technical School students were under the supervision of teachers Rebekah Frantz and Trevor Mellington who themselves joined in to endeavour to shoot as many clay targets as possible. Trevor proudly downed an impressive 11/14.

Some students had experience with clay target shooting, so they were separated into two groups as learners and shooters.

After an initial safety discussion on shotgun handling and use, the students were taken out to the two Skeet layouts for some actual target shooting. The shooter group was given a 20 target round of skeet in which some shot very good scores. Nathan Taylor on a very good 14/20, and Emma Scott not far behind.

The learner group was coached on the low house Skeet position being the easiest shooting spot, as they progressed to hitting targets they were then moved to the high house position to make it a little harder to score. With individual coaching the learners were pleasantly surprised when they started to actually put a score together.

Echuca Clay Target Club committee members have throughout the year participated in numerous coaching clinics for school students. They are only too willing to give a help to schools in this way, and the thought from many was, that if the schools were going to continue to include Clay Target Shooting, that perhaps a competition of some sort between schools could be arranged.

At the end of the two-hour session all students and teachers were impressed by their improvement in the sport, and agreed that the time spent was very enjoyable.

Lawson William SHEAFE, (Jack),

20th June 1919 to 29th November 2003.

Jack was a long serving American Serviceman who was stationed in the Pacific during WW2. He served with some distinction, receiving the Silver Star, The Purple Heart, The Air Medal and the Presidential Citation along with many campaign medals. He retired with the rank of Master Sergeant in the American Air Force.

During the war, Jack met and married his wife Daphne. They lived in America and England during Jack's service of the war. About 1970, Jack and Daphne moved to Australia, a country he came to love. They settled at Homebush, near Mackay, where Jack worked for a local sports shop. His knowledge of firearms made him popular in this position.

Jack was involved in most of the shooting sports, rifle, black powder and of course, Clay Target Shooting! He conducted many "Ringer Recovery" shoots on Saltbush Park station following the Annual picnic race meeting on the station airstrip. These are fondly remembered to this day.

Jack passed away after a long illness and will missed by members of the Mackay and Sarina Clay target Club.

Our sympathies to Daphne and sons, Bob and David.

Alan Robert Mabey

Former New Zealand National President

Australian shooters recently lost a great kiwi friend with the passing of Alan Mabey. Alan was extremely well known to many shooters who had visited New Zealand; as well as to many he had met on his frequent visits to Australia.

Alan was the New Zealand Clay Target Association's National President from 1995 to 2000. During his time as President, Alan very keenly pursued the betterment of relations between our two Countries and to this end, was a frequent visitor to our Trap Nationals. When in Australia, Alan loved to visit as many clubs as he could, just to have a yarn and a shot.

He was a competitive shooter for in excess of 40 years, and in 1979 was the winner of the New Zealand Single Rise Championship.

His popularity was evidenced at his funeral service in his home town of Woodville, when the Community Centre was used to accommodate the more than 500 mourners.

Sincere sympathy is extended to his wife, Judy, and to sons, Graham and Brian and their families.

THE SEVEN "P's"

What is the seven "P's"?

The seven "P's" is a saying that comes from the military and it stands for; PRIOR PLANNING PREPARATION PREVENTS PISS POOR PERFORMANCE.

What this means is that when you undertake any given task or activity you should take the time to plan what it is that you are about to do. In our sport of shooting clay targets this could include:

TRAINING FOR MAJOR EVENTS:

Knowing that a certain event is X weeks away gives you the opportunity to start a training regime that suits your work, family and other lifestyle commitments.

This could include physical, diet, mental and/or target practice to give you the edge over other competitors.

EQUIPMENT:

Ensuring that the equipment you use is in the best possible condition is essential. From the shoes you are wearing to the fit of your gun all needs to be in order for good results. Guns should be cleaned and serviced at regular intervals and kept in quality cases to protect them from the elements and damage. This will ensure that optimum performance is achieved from your firearm.

Other equipment such as glasses, jackets, hats etc should be kept in a bag or case that you can fit all of the items that are needed into, so that they are always together and you don't need to run around trying to find things at the last minute, or worse forgetting that all important item.

BEING PREPARED FOR ALL POSSIBILITIES:

This is having the wet weather gear in case of rain, that spare ejector spring just in case or any number of other possibilities that may arise. Although it is impossible to prepare for everything, by doing a bit of homework on the club or venue that you will be attending it may be possible to eliminate some potential problems.

When at a club that you have never been to before take the time to have a look over the traps and take note of the targets, trajectory, height, angles, etc so that there are no surprises when you start the competition.

ENSURE THAT YOU ARE CLEAR HEADED AND READY FOR COMPETITION:

To give yourself the best possible chance of success you need to be at your mental best. To arrive at the firing line in this state is essential and that the athlete must not be hung over or in any other state of intoxication. Other factors that may cloud your mind are work, family, or monetary problems. These factors need to be worked through before you go to the firing line. It is handy to have a mental switch that can be turned ON as you make your way to the line, so that your only thoughts are on the task ahead.

Try to be as positive as you can.

Dear Your Say,

I would like to make comment on an article in the December 2003 Clay Target News.

It is always great to hear how representative teams fair in Australia and overseas. The results, the lost baggage, the funny things that happen. But I believe comments on how uncommitted or how bad someone was should be left on tour or handled by the managers of the team, after all, that's why they go. Not to air things like that in the National magazine. Most sports coaching documentation will also tell you that open airing of these situations will normally make matters worse, and decrease performance from the competitor. If the juniors are the up and coming of our sport they should have more training and even be chaperoned to give them the right idea on how to behave and compete, and encouragement. After all they are JUNIORS. Senior shooters should not be burdened with this as they are trying their best, but team managers and other team staff should.

I recently returned from an overseas tournament and would like to say, how well the Ladies team performed by winning Gold, the Juniors team on their Silver medal performance and the Open Men's team on a successful Bronze medal. To the individual medal winners from the men's, ladies and juniors, and to all members for their contribution and friendship in the Oceania DTL Australian Team 2003, well done.

Lifting the Bar.

In his opening remarks to the shooters gathered at the Advanced Coaching Clinic recently held at Maryborough Gun Club, Jim Shepherd, the organiser and level 3 coach, believed that taking part in the day would "lift the bar" for those who attended. The problem with advanced skills coaching, mental training, etc is that you don't see the results immediately. By learning the skills, knowledge and concepts you will be better over time and you will be able to lift the bar.

The Advanced Coaching day was organised jointly by North-West Zone and North-East Zone of the VCTA and I believe that the day was a resounding success. I'm not just saying this because I happened to be one of the presenters; the programme was interesting and informative, the speakers were credible in their fields, the food was delicious and the organisation especially the timing was excellent.

The four Key Speakers

There were a number of Victorian coaches were available; John McVitty, Glenn Woodhatch, Jim Shepherd, Steve Atkins, Gary Cassells, Terry Boucher and the VCTA president, Ron Trail. The day started with Kevin Wright explaining how to fit a gun. His talk was informative and he explained, in simple language, what gun fit was about. He demonstrated where and how a gun should fit. The next session was of my session on motivation and goal setting. This was followed by a practical, hands on, shooting session where shooters had the opportunity to have one of the coaches assist their shooting technique. This session was assisted with the generous support of RIO Oceania who provided shells for the participants to try. Three types of shells were available and this gave the shooters, especially the juniors, the opportunity to try RIO subsonics, RIO 20s or RIO Star Team. Back inside and it was time to look at the importance of the eyes in shooting. While initially this topic was a bit clinical it improved when people started asking shooting specific questions about glasses, glass colour and so on.

After a fine lunch, Ian McGeoch, gave a fascinating session on how to look after your gun; cleaning, maintenance, patterning, choke selection and then the final session was again looking at mental skills training and involved learning out of sport concentration exercises and some visualisation techniques to improve dealing with distractions.

What was interesting about this coaching concept was that involved aspects of shooting that went beyond how to shoot. Coaching is an interesting phenomenon. Any readers who are interested in Rugby League or Union, Aussie Rules or Cricket are well aware of the role of the coach in these sports. The coach may help with some technical skills but usually the coach's job is to mould the team into a productive and manageable unit. It's often the case that the coach of these sports are not even players or ex-players; Allan Jones, former coach of the Wallabies is a good examples of this.

So if the role of the coach in team sports is to motivate and lead the team, what is the role of the coach in an individual sport such as shooting or golf? Initially, for every sport the role of the coach is to teach and refine technique; but most shooters, once they understand the fundamentals, are able to shoot some targets, and improving technique will only lift the bar so high. So what is the coach's role after the shooter has learnt to shoot. It's here that the role of the coach changes from teaching techniques, to facilitating life skills or in the case of a sportsperson; match skills. Aspects such as goal setting, performance logging, motivation, visualisation, out of sport relaxation and concentration exercises, dealing with defeat and injury and retirement issues are all components that the serious sportsperson should have support with. Most shooters perform well without a personal trainer or coach because they have the skills and abilities to achieve the results. However, if your skills. Gone are the days when coaches screamed and belittled players. Coaches need to be genuine, warm, caring, congruent and respectful.

Practical coaching also played an important part in the days proceedings. Three layouts were needed to cope with the 50 plus shooters who attended.

What did the Advanced Coaching Clinic achieve? It provided for shooters an opportunity to go beyond the mechanical aspects of being able to hit a target. It explored those issues that will help shooters lift their own personal bar and achieve better results more consistently. It showed shooters that just coming to the competition with the aim to win is not enough. To win you must be prepared, organised, have set realistic and achievable goals to help you along the way. It gave shooters the opportunity to talk about aspects of their shooting they may have been scared of asking. It provided a sense of belonging, acceptance and fun. If we can lift the bar, then as we compete with each other we will all start to achieve better results. The organisers need to be congratulated for coming up with the idea of an advanced coaching skills day and even more so for their ability and hard work in making it such a success.
